STUDIO RHODE WOONSOCKET

“My Woonsocket Life”
A Storytelling Project

Your story matters!
Be Counted!
Tell Us YOUR Woonsocket Story!

This summer, the Harris Library will launch a multi-generational, multi-cultural storytelling project called “My Woonsocket Life” to share, through our personal stories, both the proud history of the City and its culturally rich present. We will be using digital media to document the City’s past, its present, and our visions for its future.

Our goal is to empower our community to play an active role in the library’s and the City Planning Department’s visions for the future. With this new technology, our residents will learn new skills and use digital tools to help create a collective identity for Woonsocket.

We will be recording video and audio personal narratives from our Woonsocket community. Our stories will be uploaded to YouTube, iTunesU, and, in the future, to the Smithsonian Institution. We need YOUR story!

Here are 3 prompts to think about to guide you in telling your Woonsocket story.
1. Tell us about a favorite memory of your life in Woonsocket.
2. What do you like about living in Woonsocket? What do you find challenging?
3. What would you do today to change Woonsocket?

The Library’s Studio Rhode Team will be conducting story collecting events in the library and in the community. Look for upcoming events on our Facebook page and on our website at WoonsocketLibrary.org. For more details, email Margaret: mmcnulty@woonsocketlibrary.org
